- 61.1150 Undated – 138 pages of Early Sermons of Father P.J. Ryan in his own handwriting, apparently the first rough draft into which flowed the zeal and fervor of a great heart. There is a typed copy of published items covering his life and labors from 1831 (his birth) to 1911(his death). During his priesthood and episcopacy in St. Louis, local and diocesan papers of the area carried items testifying to his activities and indefatigable priestly labors especially among the poor and the Civil War Wounded and dying in hospitals and homes. Incidentally, as pastor of Annunciation parish, he built a very imposing and beautiful church financed in great part by his own efforts and sermons. His saintly and sanctifying leadership was carried over into his new field of labor in Philadelphia and was unmistakably portrayed in the successive issues of the Catholic Standard and Times from 1884 until after his death in 1911. Local papers also recognized and acknowledged his sterling virtues as exercised in his high office. His simplicity, serenity, sincerity, sanctity were self-evident in all his ways and endured to the edification of all throughout his long life. Laity, religious, clergy, public celebrities of city and State, Church and Nation, no less than the homeless, the unfortunate, the wayward, sufferers from wars or any public calamity, all revered him and found in him a father, counselor and advocate. "Chrysostom of America," he was acclaimed for his scholarship and holiness in spoken or written word whether he spoke from pulpit or conference table, or a chair in a humble home. His practical love for his people shone forth in every aspect of parochial and missionary activity, and every appeal of the Holy Father for the needy in any part of the world was taken to his heart as his own and commended to the hearts of his faithful. There was a constancy in his mode of approach in all such matters, a fidelity in reporting returns and thanking God and his beloved people. Gratitude was outstanding in his nature and charity enfolded his every action as if in every soul he recognized its Savior. His love for his seminary as "the most important work" of his diocese was kept before his people. The tremendous impact of his holiness is readily sensed in reading the typed record as already cited. In the SBS Archives the carbon copy has been preserved, and carded briefly for reference or checking, but there is no record as to the whereabouts of the original typed copy
